The 400 shares of Genuine Parts Company stock donated by Malcolm Fraser in 1949 were placed — and are still held — in a safe deposit box. They have since grown to 82,000 shares through stock splits, are now worth over $5,084,000, and have generated more than $4 million in dividends. His gifts continued every year until his death in 1994.

Copy of the original Cash Journal covering the first nine years. The Journal was hand written by Malcolm Fraser and hangs in the Foundation's Memphis office. Documented are the very first grant to Western Michigan University for Dr. Charles Van Riper's research in 1949, a grant to Northwestern University in 1954 for a Symposium on Stuttering, and payments to Drs. Charles Van Riper, Joseph Sheehan, James Frick, and Charles Elliott for a planning session for the first SFA weeklong conference held in Delray Beach, Florida, December 27, 1956, to January 3, 1957.

65 Years: Foundation Celebrates Milestone

When Malcolm Fraser went to his Memphis bank in late December 1947 and made an initial deposit of $2,500 into a new account for a fledgling nonprofit foundation, few would have given his dream much chance of success.

President Truman was launching the Marshall Plan. Ronald Colman and Loretta Young were winning Oscars. Groucho Marx's You Bet Your Life premiered on radio. And the Yankees had just won the World Series.

But Malcolm Fraser, a self-made business success by the age of 40, had other interests that year. He stuttered. And he was determined to explore and evaluate ways of helping others who are affected by this speech disorder that today includes some three million Americans.

Sixty-five years later, Fraser's dream has long since become a reality and the cornerstone of activities that assist those who stutter worldwide.

The Stuttering Foundation of America has embraced a breadth of programs in the past six and a half decades that are, indeed, Malcolm Fraser's proudest achievement.

The Foundation:

- publishes and distributes more than 800,000 books and brochures on stuttering therapy each year, including to readers in all 50 states and some 136 nations;
- responds annually to more than 50,000 e-mails and telephone calls to its toll-free helplines from those who stutter, their families, and speech-language pathologists;
- has placed DVDs and books in more than 8,700 public libraries that provide help to adults, teens, and children who stutter and their parents on how to make effective changes in their speech;
- generates over a million dollars in print, radio, and TV public service advertisements on stuttering and how people can find help.

This prodigious work has been led by the Fraser family and, in recent years, by Malcolm's daughter, Jane. Now President of the Stuttering Foundation, she has taken her support staff and the Board of Directors in new directions, but has never forgotten the positive, self-help philosophy that inspired her late father.

"I think my father had a sense of the continuing legacy he was passing on," says Jane Fraser. "It is because of his vision and considerable financial sacrifice that we now are able to train speech-language pathologists in the specifics of stuttering therapy in seminars and workshops that fill a critical need."

"The Foundation has co-sponsored professional training for speech therapists with Northwestern University, University of Iowa, Boston University, the University of Washington, St. Catherine's College, Oxford, and the University of Memphis, to name just a few. The exciting new partnership with the Michael Palin Centre in London is one more step in broadening our global outreach," continues Jane Fraser. "All this represents my father's vision of 65 years ago as well."

Today, the Foundation continues to expand its universe of education, research and self-help. From one of its earliest volumes—written by the founder and still an excellent introduction for all those who stutter and hope to become more fluent in their speech—the Foundation has expanded. It publishes books, DVDs, and brochures that are distributed below cost and contain the observations and suggestions of some of the world's leading authorities on stuttering. "There has been a remarkable explosion in demand for information on stuttering," notes Jane Fraser. "Especially when one considers that my mother was still personally shipping all the Foundation's books as recently as 1968."

The Foundation's Web sites, www.StutteringHelp.org and www.tartamudez.org, receive more than 1.5 million hits per month!

Sixty-five years later, his nonprofit Foundation has expenditures of over $1.6 million annually. It provides yearly awards to journalists and broadcasters who provide outstanding stories on the causes and treatment of stuttering. The SFA provides support to exciting new research in genetic and neurological research that in the future will help those who stutter.

In 1997, the first annual award was given to an outstanding individual in the field of stuttering therapy. Fittingly, it was known to professionals everywhere as the Malcolm Fraser Award.

Educational Conferences & Workshops

The Foundation holds conferences and workshops around the country to train speech-language pathologists from the U.S. and other countries.

Global Outreach

In 2012, SFA books, DVDs, and brochures reached people who stutter in 136 countries. In addition to participating in world conferences, the Foundation has gone global by joining forces with the Michael Palin Centre for Stammering Children.

Basic Research

The SFA is turning its attention more and more to various facets of basic research, including neurology and genetics. The Foundation is actively involved in several new projects.

Publications and DVDs

The 29 books, 40 DVDs, and 27 brochures produced by the Foundation are distributed throughout the world.

Our People

The dedicated staff in Memphis, Tenn., and other locations is responsible for answering the Foundation's helpline and distributing more than 800,000 publications worldwide each year.
